Mohamed practices in the areas of business litigation, professional liability, product liability, and complex torts. Mohamed is a 2024 graduate from the University of St. Thomas School of Law. He served as the Publications Editor for the Journal of Law and Public Policy and gained courtroom experience as a member of the school's trial advocacy team, competing twice in the American Association for Justice Student Trial Advocacy Competition. He was also a semifinalist in the 2024 Midwest Constance Baker Motley Mock Trial Competition. His dedication to leadership and to his peers was recognized with the 2022 Student Leadership Award from the Black Law Students Association. Mohamed first came to Larson · King as a Summer Associate after his second year of law school. Before pursuing his legal career, he worked at the Mayo Clinic as a Senior Program Coordinator. During his time at Mayo, Mohamed co-authored an article published in the American Journal of Clinical Pathology. He earned the 2017 Department of Medicine Allied Health Innovation-Bright Idea Award. Mohamed holds a bachelor's degree in political science from Augsburg University where he studied abroad in Tanzania and Egypt. Outside of work, Mohamed enjoys traveling, watching New York Knicks basketball, and following Premier League Soccer. He is also a huge fan of Game of Thrones.
